New Fusion Tiles from Craven Dunnill for Everyday Modern Living

The new Fusion porcelain wall and floor tile collection from Craven Dunnill straddles the trend for stripped-back, urban living with the practical desire for timeless style. As such, it will not readily date. This stunning new range takes inspiration from a North American stone. It incorporates elements of petrified wood, replicated convincingly in Fusion's surface design, whilst the off-set brick mosaics strike an industrial vibe.

Fusion from Craven Dunnill's Renaissance Collection comes in three colourways: silver, ivory and amber and is supplied in a natural glazed or semi-polished finish (Lappato). There are four sizes of tiles available, which are all suitable for both floors and walls: 758 x 453mm (large format), 605 x 300mm, 605 x 147mm and 150 x 75mm (brick mosaic). Retail prices start at around £49.55m² for the 605 x 147mm size.

Porcelain tiles are highly practical: they require virtually no maintenance other than a wipe clean, are excellent conductors of heat and therefore ideal for underfloor heating, withstand moisture and stains and do not harbour allergens.
